THE TIMES DAILY MAGAZINE PAGE

Hectic-Hued Mufflers of Worsted or Silk Jumping Into Light of Popularity

High, Engulfing Collars, All-Swathing Mufflers, and All-Enveloping Fur Neckpieces Are Seen Everywhere. Colors, Stripes, and Splashes Meet Approval.

> By MARGARET MASON. hers jealously close about her chin with just one long end given its freedom to float seductively behind her shapely back. Oh, there is as much art required in adjusting your muffer as there is joy in the perfect attainment.

With Triple Chins.

What with the high engulfing collars, the all swathing mufflers and the all enveloping fur neck pieces I fear me chinning will become a lost pastime. For chins will be more than receding

the storekeeper will open a big

'What do you want this rope for% he asks.
"The old woman needs it to hang the wash on.'

"'And what's your name?' the store-

" Herman Wilhelm Pfeifer."
"Gwan, says the storekeeper, closing the book. 'You can't get no rope here without a prescription."—Clacinnati TimesStar.

keeper asks.

If you want to be a dashing Little run about this year Pray don't cut out your muffler They are very smart, my dear. NEW YORK, Oct. 1.-Muffle up little closer even if these are dog days, indian summer and all that. If you could be foxy in a white fox neck piece on the Fourth of July surely a little thing like a worsted muffler can't put you out of the running now. Prostrated victims of the hottest day of the season seeking the solace of a long cold draught pleasantly atinkle with cubes of ice in a smart hotel nearly swooned at the appearance of a chic young flapper in a Chinese tasseled hat swathed to the nose in a wide fringed worsted muffler, red and white striped like an American flag. Since then though the heat abateth not mufflers increaseth mightly.

Such heetic hued affairs they are too; in glowing combinations of stripes and spots and splashes while some are one color on one side and another color on the other. Solid colored ones of bright purple are fringed in gold with a quaint sold embroidered monogram on one end. A temperamental flame toned one has the reverse side in ash gray and tigerish confection has black stripes on a tawny background.

Worsted Ones Popular. There are all silk ones and fiber silk ones, but the worsted ones have the real stamp of fashionable approval, and some stamp of fashionable approval, and some of these in variegated stripes of rainbow has are decidedly reminiscent of Hi Holler. Indeed, the old time farmer and rural character would never seem to have been without his muffler as a first aid to chore doing. The maid today is quite as a first aid to heartbreaking.

Much originality and artistry is shown in the arrangement of these telling throat attachments. One maid with killing coquetry knots hers under her left pink ear, the ingenue wears hers tied behind like a doting mother ties a napking around the neck of her offspring in lieu of a bib forgot. Yet another wraps

Three-Minute Journey

By TEMPLE MANNING. right, 1915, Newspaper Feature Service.

HE Island of Fernando Po Hes off the west coast of Africa and is inhabited by a strange race of savages call Boobles. Its interior is little although there have been any expeditions into its forests and plantations of the whites are radually creeping back along the into the mountains was fraught with il manner of difficulties, some of

In many places we were compelled to cut our way, and so seldom made more than a mile an hour. Up steep hills we plodded, then down into deep ravines from which we must win our way slowly. The streams that flowed down the rocky beds were often rushing torrents that all were often rushing torren's that all but swept us off our feet, and when we reached the heights we pushed our way through rank forest growth for endiess miles. Without the assistance of a guide we never could have found our way. Once in awhite we would come out upon a clearing from which we could see the fruitful plains dipping down toward the sea, with gigantic cotton trees standing out sharply against the blue sky. One of the strangest things about this island is that its few inhabitants divided up into a number of different groups. The reasen for this is because Booby is a stay-at-thome; some of the old men and women have never been outside their own villages. The mountainous character of the country is another cause.

some or the old men and women have never been outside their own villages. The mountainous character of the country is another cause.

These curious people do not overburden themselves with names, having no Christian name at all. When one man wishes to attract the attention of another he shouts "bubl," which means "man." The entire island is divided up into districts and each district may have as many as three towns, yet the one name of the district does duty as the name of each town.

The Booby towns are often merely a collection of hvis on a mountain side; very rarely are they anything more than the gathering places of the savages. All conveniences that contact with the whites would seem to introduce are lacking. And yet the Boobles are hospitable, particularly if you have an interpreter and come with small gifts. When we pitched our tents they invariably thronged about us and marveled at the way our camp beds were put up. And sometimes they welcomed us with a dance of welcome. "Yo sa ippor!" they chanted, which means "We bid you welcome."

Dancing is one of the chief pleasures of the Boobles, and each village has its dancing green, consisting of a square level clearing in the bush, and here their orgies are held. The greatest delight of the Booby is his "topi." or palm wing. To deprive a Booby of his "topi" even for a single day, one of the commonest sights is to see the entire population file out into the bush about 5 o'clock in the atternoon to visit the pain into the bush about a close in the afternoon to visit the paim trees.

Each family owns a small grove and each tree is equipped to give the precious wine. The fibrous top is cut away on one side, and into it is driven a metal tubing, the other end being inserted into the neck of a gourd. In ascending the trees to collect the "topi" the Booby shows his greatest ingenuity. He uses a bamboo hoopeliptical in shape, which he passes around the trunk of the tree and the lower part of his back. The hoop is then fastened by a loop knot on one side. Leaning back, his feet against the tree, he commences to climb, shifting the hoop as he proceeds with his hands. Literally the Booby walks up the tree with a speed that is amazing.

Charlotte Walker Recalls Past And Talks New York vs. Pictures

The New York That Took Her With a Grain of Salt Will Have to Use a Whole Saltcellar Full or Perhaps Even a Bagful This Time, But She Isn't Worried. Pictures Beckon.

By FLORENCE E. YODER. HARLOTTE WALKER feels at home here, and isn't going to feel at home in New chinning will become a lost pastime. For chins will be more than receding this season they will be absolutely retired from public gaze. The poor swain who yearns to espouse a damsel with the weak chin and prastic temperament of the glinging vine may discover to his consternation after marriage when he first glimpses her chin unmuffled that she has the firm and stable law structure of the advanced feminist.

This ought to be a most successful season for the lady with the triple chins. She is sure to own a collection of mufflers from A to Z, for she knows to her joy that two chins in a muffler are as good as one in the gpen any day. It ought to offer wonderful opportunities for reduction also for a rubber chin strap could be worn efficaciously and unseen beneath the muffler and even the muffler on its own account ough perspiration these torrid days to reduce any known or unknown quantity of chins without any guttapercha aid.

Whether you be chinny or chinless, however, you'd better muffle up in a muffler or you'll muff the hit of the season.

at home here, and isn't going to feel at home in New York. She didn't care much to talk about anything else the other day when she granted an interview, unless perhaps it was the fact that she was glad to be with Mr. Sothern, was torn with doubt as to whether or not she would appear again in "pictures," and was anxious to let the young people here know that she was very much pleased to be back among them.

As someone had previously told me, I found her quite the most akreeable and amiable person I have ever met, and so quiet and tempermental by turns that it was truly surprising.

"Don't slt in this dim light," she said at once, when the prospect for having an interview in the semidarkness of the lobby was breaking my heart "I can't atand anything dim or artificial. Lets get into the sunlight. Have you eaten? You must eat."

With the swoopy languid walk which so characterizes her she led me food-wards, and since she seemed to enjoy ordering me about because "I was just a little Washington girl after all" I did not resist. Conversation picked up courage and fairly hummed.

"When I say that I am glad to get back here I mean it. Gracious, it was ten years ago—ten years, just think of that!" she said with a slow drawi and a slower smile that opened out full just as she unfolded both eves.

"I can't believe it was that long. The little girls who came to see me out full just as she unfolded both eyes.

"I can't believe it was that long. The little girls who came to see me in stock then at the Co'umbla must be great, grown women by this time." I tried not to act like a great, grown woman, but didn't succeed. We exchanged ages and ancedotes, while she leaned on her hands, folded loosely under her sweet. Tribly-like chin, and laughed.

"Yes, I am glad to be here, but I can't judge anything about the production," she drawled. "People here are so inordinately nice to me it makes me almost forget other things. I can't tell what will happen in some other city."

She laid a slim hand on her cheat and shook her head in mock sorrow. "You know that the last time I appeared up in New York, that horrid place, there were some—there were some who sald that I ought to be at home washing dishes! And still I nome washing dishes! And still I return.

MISS CHARLOTTE WALKER.

Since she seemd struck with the ludicrousness of the situation. I laughed, too, but failed to see the humor in it until she finished. "And to think that I have to go back there, where I was flayed alive. I feel like a child who has been heaten, but who is forced to go back and take the beating all over again. "New York took me once before with a grain of salt," but they will have to take me with a whole salt cellar full this time, or with a bag. They will need all they can gather." She made a grimace of diagust, and then smiled axain. "But if I don't have a happy time there its back to the pictures," she finished, dramatically, as a servant told her that she was wanted on the telephone. She was gone but a few moments, and when seated again gave me a knowing yet weary glance. "It's the pictures again calling me all the way from New York."

She seemed to take the whole thing as some delicious joke, and it was only when she spoke of her long struggle to learn self control that she becames quite serious. "That is the worst lesson of all. And when I play Mrs. Guilford I must represent a woman who has perfect control, who has come to the great repose of the end of things. But I can't help having temperament. I am going to try, though I have always played those roles which allowed for the display of a great deal of my own disposition. I was almost allowed to make the role for myself and myself into the role. But in this play with Mr. Sothern, I must be continually on my guard. I am not at all like Mrs. Guilford, return."
Since she seemd struck with the for myself and myself into the role. But in this play with Mr. Sothern, I must be continually on my guard. I am not at all like Mrs. Guilford. I have not yet reached the stage of poise she had attained when the play opened, but I must simulate it. But you can't imagine how difficult it is to keep perfectly still.

"I surely appreciate the fact that I am with Mr. Sothern. It presents a great opportunity for me, and I will be glad to be with him as long as possible. He is so quaint. so "Pantonish," and such a finished technician at his art. Indeed. I could not say as I do in the play that he is the 'sweetest quaintest person I have ever known, if he were not. The care with which he has presented my role to me is duplicated by his interest in every member of the cast."

Some of the temperament to which she had confessed was in evidence, for her gavety seemed a little forced at times, and she slipped more casily from laughter to aeriousness than she did from seriousness to laughter.

"If ever I, have a theater it will be called the Mansfield Theater," she was saying when I was aroused from an entirely too absorbed contemplation of her fair hair, blue eyes, and big white teeth. "I think

Shops

By THE SHOPPER.

and velvet and flowers? Little daughter must do the same, for children's fashions are following closely the lead of their elders. One hat for the little maid of five was of Alice blue velvet with a furry binding of beaver around the brim and a couple of little roses posed at a rakish angle. The price was $8.

Flapper fashions are quite a feature of the designer's art these days. The girl of fifteen can now select an outfit suited to her years, and not either an elongated child's frock nor a curtailed woman's dress. A useful and becoming school frock on youthful lines is of men's wear serge made with the effect of a jacket over taffeta of the same color-dark blue. Crimson stitching of heavy floss slik and a touch of the same color in the buttons gave the needed contrast. All the materials were of such good quality and the style so excellent that it would be hard to equal it for $12.5.

Telephone Mais 5260 and ask "The

Nutritive Value of Oil As Food Often Forgotten In The Selection of Dietary

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG.

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG.

(Copyright, 1915, by Newspaper Yesture Service, Isc.)

T is not only learning and toil over as glycerine, water, and even simple books that comes from the consumption of the midnight oil. Flesh and blood also come from it, if that happens to enter the stomach. A ght supper, a drink of oil, a good ight's sleep, and a fine moraling has ten made a hero of the same man ho, by too much lean meat, a bad dissertion, a restless night and a rainy sorning, would have proved a coward, brute.

Oils and fats are commonly not very T is not only learning and toll over books that comes from the consumption of the midnight oil. Flesh and blood also come from it. If that oil happens to enter the stomach. A light supper, a drink of oil, a good night's sleep, and a fine moraling has often made a hero of the same man who, by too much lean meat, a bad direction a restless night and a rainy gestion, a restless night and a rainy morning, would have proved a cowardly brute.

Oils and fats are commonly not very popular foods. Few of us care to dull a good dinner with a glassful of pure oil, yet it may be the very thing yearned for by the tlasues.

While it is not demanded by the human fabric that the digestive maching the human fabric and set he wire large here.

ery be surcharged with swine lard, be-cause it is to be remembered that a uliness of the stomach may invite a nomentary vacuity of the mind, not-withstanding omission of oils from the dietary may incite great physical evils.

Olive oil, cottonsed oil, milk or cream, cod liver oil and other pure oil, uncontaminated with alcohol, enter the stomach and then become converted into Stored As Working Power.

This emulsion or chyle is carried through the 'lacteals' or milky lymph channels, from which it is seized by the blood, and eventually reaches the tissues.

The nutritive value of oils to man-kind depends in a fashion upon the energy, fire, steam, and work they fur-nish. This, weight for weight, is greater than fleshy foods, eggs, meats, nuts, and other albumens or proteins. It also surpasses that of the sugars and starches.

A glass of pure olive or cod liver oil serves many human needs, from lubri-cation to fuel, from working power to reconstructive material.

Do Sugars Make Fats?

It becomes in part heat energy. It enters the grain elevators of the tex-ture as a latent supply of skin and ture as a latent supply of skin and tissue fat. It combines with other substances in the teguments to yield new constituents of the flesh. It even changes to water and yields carbonic acid gas, glycerine, and the so-called fatty acids.

The oily globules of fat which are conserved as adipose tissue remain unchanged and accumulate, except in illness, muscular work, muscular play, or fasting. Then it becomes an emergency food, is tackled by the pepsinlike enzyme called "lipose," and is thus split up into the substances named such

Answers to Health Questions

Mrs. F. M.—I am twenty-seven years cld. weigh 116 pounds, and have a fairly good appetite, but suffer with a tired, worn-out feeling. I want to work, but cannot get up enough ambition to get at it. Also I am bothered with headaches which come over my right eye. Will you kindly advise me?

First, have your eyez examined and fitted with the proper glasses, obtain more sleep and rest; retire at 9 o'clock; gleep for ten hours, and then, if possible, take a rest or nap for an hour or so in the afternoon. Take dally exercises in the open air—walk row, swim play tennis, ride horseback or something like that. Eat plenty of good, nourishing foods, including carrots, young peas, asparagus, vegetables with oilve oil, cereals, fresh and stewed fruits, drink three quarts of distilled water and one or two guarters of fresh milk daily.

Scarface-Please tell if I can have a also surpasses that of the sugars and starches.

Stored as reserve strength beneath the skin, the living creature has a reservoir of nourishing pabulum available for various emergencies, such as long continued disease.

The larger the quantity of fats thus held in the cupboards and cellars of the living fiber, the longer will the true flesh go untouched by accident and disease waste.

A glass of pure clive or cod liver oil.

F. L. T.—I am working on a farm and get lots of fresh air and sunlight. I was ruptured six years ago by hard work and was almost cured by wearing a truss. I took it off, but now have to wear it again. I am loaing weight, and have a dull tired feeling in the head. Stop all hard labor and have the rup-ture stitched up for good and all at a

PERSONAL ADVICE.

Readers desiring advice should remember:

1. To address inquiries to Dr. L. K. Hirshberg, care of The Washington Times.

2. To enclose a stamped and addressed envelope if a personal dressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

The Orient On Fifth Avenue

MME. ROSHANARA, Interpreter of Hindu Dances, Startled New Yorkers With This Colorful Glimpse of Herself. She Advocates

Parasols Instead of Hats.

that we have done little enough to preserve the memory of that man."
Remarks about temperament had drawn Manasfield's name into the conversation, for Miss Walker had been a friend of his and testified to more than one display of throwing things, such as beefsteak and other triffes.

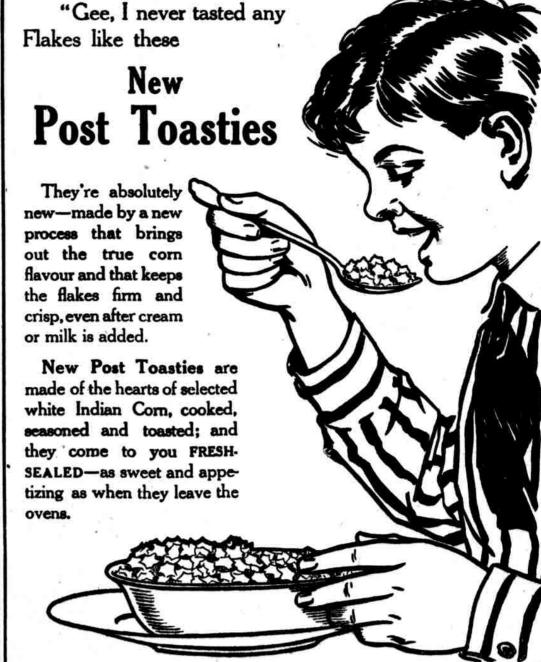

"But if New York won't have me," she scoffed and smilled as we went out," I stand little show of getting a theater of my own with any name on it. It's back to the pictures! Remember me to any of the girls you know who used to come and see me in stock. They at least have a good opinion of me, for I did my best things here. I think."

The message is herewith delivered.

Seen In The

OES mother have a hat of fur

Telephone Main 5260 and ask "The Shopper" or information giving the shopper" or information giving the names of shops which carry the ar-ticles referred to in these columns. Mail inquiries should earlose a stamped, self-addressed envelope or postal card for reply.

New Post Toasties

The little puffs on each flake are characteristic of the

Your grocer has them now-get a package and give your appetite a treat.